Berlin, January 1.—Medals for large consumption of bock beer really mean something on New Year's day and hereafter. German brewers are celebrating the new year with the resumption of pre-war, 16 per cent bock. Consumers who can dispose of more than ten steins of bock at a single sitting are decorated with a brass medal to commemorate their feat. Owing to dilution since the war, some bock drinking experts have been obtaining four or five of the brewer's medals nightly.

Berlin's New Year celebrations surpassed even the splendor of such occasions before the war. Hotels and military and diplomatic men with their women folk. The celebration turned the corner with ear splitting racket at midnight and headed for dawn.

racket at midnight and headed for dawn.

The nightlong festivities extended even to the poorer restaurants where hot punch was provided free for those who cared to drink. The police were in readiness for trouble, but such was not really expected, for although Berliners drink heavily, they usually are a peaceful lot on New Year's eve.

Berlin bakeries produced 9,000,000 pancakes, or "Berliner pfannkuchen," a raised and filled doughnut containing strawberry jam or pineapple, for ing strawberry jam or pineapple, for special New Yorks eve consumption. Fishmongers were mable to supply the demand for carp, despite stocks of be located where big business is active.

The students come from the best homes and when these fine young people finish, they are placed with much care and thought with the best class of business concerns, and it is necessary to carry out a very distinctive policy in selecting the student body as well as securing the best location. By carefully carrying out such a policy it is no wonder that the college must seek larger quarters in order to accommodate the large number of young people who seek admittance.

Draughon's College is not only careful to select a suitable location, modern equipment and a fine class of students, the majority of whom are high school graduates and college students, but is just as careful to select the right type of teachers who are properly trained and who are in symples and carefully planned courses are taught and are kept revised to meet the modern conditions of business. Strong discipline is maintained at all times and regular reports are made to parents in order that full cooperation may be secured. The aim of this school is that all.

Rome, January 1.—(P)—Within five years the city of Rome must be restored to the grandeur and vastness of power it represented during the reign of Augustus.

This program was given by Premier Mussolini in the nature of a command to Senator Filappo Cremonesi today in the course of an impressive ceremony in which the premier invested him as the first governor of the ancient city.

Signor Cremonesi becomes head of the city under the new form of government decided on by the cabinet, which gives the capital a separate administration under the ministry of the inferior.

"Within five years Rome must appear as a marvel to all the people of the world—vast, ordered, and powerful as it was in the time of the first empire of Augustus," said Mussolini. "You will make onen squares around the Augusteo amphitheater,"

The World's Most Economical Motor Fuel

Advances 2c Per Gallon Monday, January 4th

Here Is the Reason Why:

WOCO PEP is not just gasoline. It is a blend of Purol gasoline and benzol. At the time we commenced marketing this blend under the trade name of Woco Pep, benzol was practically a waste product and had but little commercial Following our established policy of giving to the public the best possible motor fuel at the lowest possible cost, we sold Woco Pep at the price straight gasoline was being sold for.

Finally realizing that the public had become thoroughly sold on the economy and satisfaction of using a mixture of gasoline and benzol, other dealers in gasoline commenced offering a somewhat similar mixture.

The supply of benzol is limited, and we contracted at the beginning for the major portion that is produced in this territory, which enabled us to maintain a uniform blend.

These early contracts, which were made at a very favorable price, have expired, and while we have been able to renew these contracts, we were only able to do so by agreeing to pay a greatly increased price.

This increased cost compels us on January 4th to advance the wholesale and retail price of Woco Pep two cents per gallon.

We handle, as you know, both Woco Pep motor fuel and Purol gasoline. In our opinion, Purol gasoline is the best straight run gasoline sold in the State of Georgia.

Purol gasoline will continue to sell at the same price as other gasoline, with Woco Pep selling at two cents per gallon more.

Instead of being praised, Don Quixote was always being langhed at and being jeered at, though he was the defender of widows and orphans, honesty and property. Sometimes there seems to be a likeness between him and one of those innocents, that are to be found in every village and hamlet, the soul of coordness and gentleness, often even of sia to Turkey and Russia have able clinical or practical evidence to support the theory, that the regular or habitual use of any such lotion or remedy will prevent respiratory intection. CHAPTER XXX. The "Atlanta Spirit" Is Born. In the childhood days of Atlanta there was coming to the front in Cherokee Georgia, a man who was desplaint which resists the best efforts tined to become one of the luminaries of his time. He eventually became "the first citizen of Atlanta" in the information which complicates the situation, taken from a high-class cursion into metropolical:

Granting that such a solution applied with atomizer, irrigator or gardle, does wash away particles of dust, which might conceivably make microscopic wounds in the mucus membrane and so open up a way of entrance for germs, the Junkaline is applied for only a moment or two night and morning, whereas the dust is busily engaged 24 hours of the day trying to break a way in for the germs. If these minute wounds by dust particles constitute the "weak spots," the Junkaline should be applied about every 10 seconds to police the threatened district properly.

ing it for better and richer things than it had even before known.

With little capital and no public credit they inaugurated a conspiracy of cooperation. They illustrated in pathetic, yet magnificent spirit, the creed of the Swiss—"un pour tous et tous pour un"—one for all and all for one! That consensus was the real genesis of what has ever since been known and become famous, as "the Atlanta spirit."

It would be unpardonable for any chronicler of the city's history to fail at this point in the story, to signalize some of the men who conjured up that spirit and made it the genius of Atlanta.

No one well acquainted with the author will say that he is over-partial or invidious in the mention of any must be counted among the regenerators of the city that was his synagogue of loyalty. With the rebuilding of Jerusalem in his spiritual vision he never doubted that Atlanta would again raise her towers and domes to be bathed by the sun of prosperity. He lived to rejoice in the realization of his mirage.

John Silvey was a man of modest temperament. But he was a keen and practical man of business. He knew that peace meant work, trade and the necessity to organize a new order of progress. He believed Atlanta was the logical pivot about which the prosperity of a large circle of producing people must turn. He worked severely and successfully to make that so—and it is so.

Joseph Winship foresaw the compulsions to agricultural production and correctly calculated that Atlanta must supply, as a nearest market, the implements to re-dress the fields of north Georgia. He may be counted as the master-mechanic of the city's revived and now constantly augmenting manufactures.

CAROL IS REPORTED IN HOTEL AT MILAN

Paris, January 2.-Carol, the missing crown prince of Rumania, is in Milan, Italy, according to a dispatch from that city.

Carol arrived last Monday, ac cording to the dispatch, accom panied only by his aide-de-camp and a chauffeur. A "Princess Lupesco" arrived at the unnamed hotel simultaneously. The prince is described as staying in his rooms, except for motor jaunts into the suburbs. All his meals are served in seclusion.

An agent of the Rumanian gov ernment arrived last Tuesday, according to the dispatch, conversed with Carol and departed.

On Friday the hotel was order ed to prepare an apartment for a grande dame, presumably the Crown Princess Helene.

Carol's retreat is not publicly known. It is reported here that even the Rumanian government is unaware of his whereabouts, although it is conjectured that he is in Italy, where he is supposed to be in the company of a beautiful woman. It is further eported that Carol soon will arrive Vienna, en route to Bucharest. The latest version of the mechanics of Carol's renunciation relates that the government was endeavoring to obtain his presence in Bucharest, re-portedly in connection with the air service imbroglio, and that the king had been requested to call a meeting of the privy council for Thursday. At this meeting the king is said to have set off a bombshell among his advisers by reading the unexpected letter of renunciation from his son. It is suggested that the government may endeavor to compel Carol to return to Bucharest by cutting off his supply of funds. Carol threater

Carol threatened to renounce his royal rank once before on the occasion of his family's efforts to annul his marriage with Mile, Lambrino.

CAROL SAID TO DESIZE TO WED ANOTHER WIFE.

London, January 1.—(P)—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Belgrade, Serbia, says one report of why Carol renounced the throne is that he desires to marry again—this time "a Jewess"—and first must obtain a divorce from Princess Helen.

The correspondent of the Daily Express in Vienna says Carol's withdrawal was due to his deep political and personal antagonism for Queen and personal antagonism for Queen Marie and Premier Bratiano. Carol favored Gen. Averesco, leader of the opposition for premier, being fearful

Dr. E. D. Soper, of Durham, N. C., discussed the race question from the larger aspect—including the Oriental as well as the negro question. He declared the question Orientals are asking is "is God a tribal God?" and that the Russo-Japanese war of 1904 was followed by unrest in the Orient, which spread through India into China.

They call on Sir Hargrave and tell him they will go. In Monte Carlo their host tells them they are free to do as they please, gives them plenty of spending money, and places a car at their disposal. Hargrave renews his acquaintance with the charming Princess INSTALLMENT XVIII. A SURPRISE VISITOR.

Hargrave watched the yellow wine from a long carafe being poured into his glass.

"You are kind and thoughtful about others, Stephanie," he said. "Some day I almost think there is a confidence of my own which I should make to you."

"You will find me always ready to listen," she assured him. "I may not give absolution, but I can give advice. Good advice, too, I think," she went on, "for although I live in the world here and in Rome-sometimes in London, sometimes in Paris, for short visits to Madrid-I think I am rather an onlooker in life. The role sults me. It amuses me to watch my fellow creatures. I have found it sufficient for many years. Just now, I am not so sure of myself."

Her eyes met his. He was conscious of a moment almost of embarrassment. She accepted it as due to the presence of the servants, and laughed lightly.

"We speak in English today," she said. "I make a point of having zervants who do not understand that language, and Paul here, my protector, speaks little of anything except Russian. Still, I am tempted, perhaps, to be too discursive. Tell me, you are having a large party for the Bal de L'Or?"

"I have taken a box," Hargrave answered. "I have done nothing yet about my guests." The princess sighed.

"I, alas," she said, 'must go with my friends upon the hill. It will be tedious, but one may escape. I shall look for your aid. You amuse yourself this season as usual?"

"I am not so sure," he answered. "I came with the idea of amusing myself more. Perhaps for that reason there have been times when I have been a little weary with the life."

"We all feel that," she confessed gently. "It is so beautiful and there is so much to attract that we rather rush at it, we embrace it almost to surfeit. I am not sure," she went on, "that you, my friend, are not a sinner in that respect."

"Perhaps I am," he admitted. "I am learning wisdom, though." She smiled at him-a smile which seemed to imply some understanding, the happiness of which made him for a moment uneasy. Then he saw the smile faded slowly from her lips, saw the change come into her face. She leaned forward, gazing down the terrace in obvious surprise. He followed the direction of her eyes. Preceded by a manservant SOMEBODY'S STENOG-Along the Seine who had not appeared at the service of luncheon, came a tall, elderly man of good figure and address. He carried his hat in his hand and his smoothly brushed, gray hair and erect carriage gave him a military appearance.

"Nicholas!" Stephanie murmured under her breath. "But this is amazing!"

He approached the table with a quick glance at Hargrave. Then he bent low over Stephanie's fingers, and raised them to his lips.

"I am forgiven, I trust, for this surprise," he said. "Your letter "Your are very welcome, of course," she answered gravely. "Har-

"Mine will be a very brief visit," the prince said, "but you are very kind." The conversation, which had merged into French, became a little dis-feet, and walked away with Hargrave. 'This visit," she confided, as they drew out of earshot of the table, "has been a complete surprise to me. It is, without doubt, the result of a letter which I wrote to Nicholas."

"Is it my fancy," Hargrave asked, "or did your husband resent my presence with you tete-a-tete? "He has not the right," she answered calmly. "But men are always unreasonable—Russians in particular. There is a strain of the Cossack, too, in Nicholas, although he is at heart a great gentleman. While he is here, I must entertain him. I must listen to what he has to say. When he goes, I send to tell you. You understand?" say. When he "Perfectly."

"And you are content?"

She raised her fingers almost to his lips before she turned away.

"Late this morning, aren't you?" he asked.

"I have nothing particular to do," she answered. "It's delightful to

He sank into a chair by her side and gave an order to his servant who had been following him with towels.

"If I may," he proposed, "I will have my coffee with you."

"If you may!" she repeated, a little scornfully.

"What time did you get home last night?" he inquired.

"About ten o'clock "But why?" he asked, frowning. "Surely I saw you going out

She stirred her coffee thoughtfully. She was capable of great reserves, but an impulse to let him know something of the truth assailed her and she yielded to it."

"Brothers don't seem to count for much in Monte Carlo," she confided. "We went to the Salles Privees because Robert thinks he wins there more easily. He spent the first part of the evening with a little French danseuse from the Cafe de France, and afterwards he disappeared altogether, either with her or someone else. I'm not complaining—please don't think that," she went on hastily. "I want Robert to enjoy himself, but to wander about the rooms by one's self isn't too pleasant, and although I don't think I'm a prude I rather like to choose my own acquaintances. That's why for the last three nights I've gone to bed at about ten o'clock, and got up in time to watch you, disapprovingly, from up there," she concluded, pointing to her balcony.

"I'm afraid I've been thoughtless," he admitted. "I must disturb you coming home at that hour of the morning "You don't disturb me, ' she assured him, "because I'm always

"What am I going to do about you?" he asked, after a brief pause, during which she had poured out his coffee, "I'm afraid you are getting a little lonely."

"I am quite satisfied to be alone," she assured him. "That doesn't mean being lonely in the least. If I may have these gardens and the sunshine and the birds in the morning and those mountains to look at and the car now and then, I am perfectly happy. Robert enjoys himself after a different fashion, but it doesn't interfere with me."

CUSTOM OF "OPEN HOUSE" IS OBSERVED IN ATLANTA

Camouflaged Dishes And Watch Parties Make Atlantans Realize New Year's Arrival

The old custom of "open house" on New Year's day was observed a large gathering of Atlanta society many Atlanta hostesses yesterday.

In Willie Daniel's hands they could be made into a great delicacy and camouflaged into a thing of beauty. Is it only the commonplace, prosy thing that has economic value for us? Would dressed up cowpeas and log jowl be of just as much psychological value as they would served "like our mothers used to?"

But why cowpeas and jowl on the first day of January only?

If the idea is worthy, why do it once and stop?

If it is well to begin the year with no unnecessary inflation of ideas or output of pocketbook, why not practice it more rigorously through the whole twelve-month?

The precedent may be admirable, but practice is too indifferently pursued, mayhap. Three hundred and sixty-four more dinners have to be provided. The fractional part of the three hundred and sixty-fifth, or, more properly speaking, the first of the three hundred and sixty-fifth, or, more properly speaking, the first of the three hundred and sixty-five, resolves itself into a matter of tradition, herely.

A wonderful tradition, however, it is not the deficiency and may be a definition, however, it is not the provided of the property speaking, the first of the three hundred and sixty-five, resolves itself into a matter of tradition, herely. ree hundred and sixty-fifth, or, more roperly speaking, the first of the ree hundred and sixty-five, resolves self into a matter of tradition, erely.

New Year's Dance at Driving Club Is Brilliant Social Event

The New Year's dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club on Friday evening was one of the most delightful affairs of the holiday season. This dance, which has been an annual affair for many years, gathering the members of the club, is always an outstanding social event. The club was beautifully decorated with the Christmas decorations. The tables placed in the ballroom were graced with baskets of poinsettias and white narcissi.

About 200 guests were present, including many visitors who are

The November series and part of the December series have been sold.

Thege bonds are secured by purchase money notes of double the amount of the issue assigned.

J. Orme, Vice President of the Atlanta Trust Company, and the Biscayne Trust Company, of Mlami, Fla., as Trustees, covering properties in Coral Gables, Fla., which properties we have inspected and approved.

The bonds are a direct obligation of Coral Gables Corporation, whose net worth on a cost basis is in excess of $23,000.00 bonds are graranteed both as to principal and interest by George E. Merrick, the owner of Coral Gables.

The trust deed obligates the Coral Gables Corporation to pay to the Trustees as a sinking fund one-thirtieth of the principal and interest of the entire issue in any month that the collections from notes held as security do not equal said sum. The sales of Coral Gables Corporation from January 1, 1925, are in excess of $80,000,000.

We recommend the purchase of these bonds as a safe and sound investment. ATLANTA TRUST CO.

Full Production Important.
Undoubtedly, therefore, a full production of American cotton is of farcrease in Production in Previous Two Seasons.

BY RICHARD T. HARRISS, President, New York Cotton Exchange.

New York, January 1.—The use of cotton is so varied and universal and product.

duction of American cotton is of far-reaching importance to the world's textile trade, and by its rise and fall may well be gauged the prosperity, not only of the idustry itself, but also of the hundreds of thousands, and even millions, of workers whose occupations, and therefore whose welfare, is either directly or indirectly dependent upon this world-needed commodity, which is America's greatest product.

killed in 1925, as compared to 29 killed in 1925, the report shows.

The decreased number of accidents is the result of rigid enforcement of traffic laws and installation of the new traffic lighting system, according to police officials.

Members of the police department investigated 157 traffic accidents during the month of December which claimed a total of three lives and 66 persons injured. Of those killed, one was killed in an automobile accident, one by a street car and the other by a motorcycle.

There were 110 accidents charged directly to automobiles; eight to street cars. Of the 66 persons hurt, 63 were injured in automobile accidents.

Brantley Boswell's 95-yard run to a touchdown in the closing moments of play was the brightest feature of the benefit football game

Schaefer copied the Wagner pose and practiced the Wagner style beginning the next afternoon. We played 12 games in the east, winning 11 of them and cinching the pennant, and it was the terrific hitting of Schaefer that was chiefly responsible for the 11 victories. Schaefer, the reputed weakling at bat, hit for an average better than .500 on that trip. The photograph turned the trick. Schaefer got the knack of meeting the ball out in front. Pitchers who had found him their "meat" suddenly discovered.

The A. A. C. candidates have been practicing for more than a month. During the last two weeks scrimmages have been held every night. Coach Bean announced Friday night that the team was in excellent condition and ready to start the season off with hopes of victory.

Several former high school stars are members of the A. A. C. team and one, Pat Stephens, who played the greater part of last season, has won a regular berth at forward, while Rufus Bass, a veteran who did not play very much last season, has come back into his own and won the other forward position alongside of Stephens.

Joe Singleton, star of former years, has been shifted to the running guard.

TO THE CONSUMERS OF ICE

Beginning with Sunday, January 3, 1926, the deliveries of Ice on Sundays will be discontinued at residences. This will be done mainly in order to permit our men and mules the rest they should have after the strain of a long and hot summer. As the discontinuance of Ice deliveries on Sundays to the family trade in Atlanta and Suburbs is a new departure we cannot now say for what length of time it will continue, but will be tried out for sixty or ninety days in order to ascertain if satisfactory to our pations and we respectfully request that they advise us if the proposed plan causes any unusual inconvenience. By anticipating needs when Saturday deliveries are made it will be an easy matter to get a supply of Ice sufficient to last over Monday. Any advice given us by our customers as to deliveries will have careful consideration but we are confidently anticipating their cordial cooperation.

Guttormsen's almost always dependable toe failed in the pinch, when his kick for goal went wide in the first quarter. His next attempt hit the bar, and, as it turned out, this lost the game.

Alabama started the first quarter with a rush and ran and jabbed the call to Washington's 15-yard line, but the Lar Tyscahoosa Crimson lost its punch and failed to shove it across.

The break-up in the charge came when Elmer Tesereau crashed the gate of the Alabama wall and dropped Mack Brown for an eight-yard loss.

That gave the Purple list first chance. Wilson, Tesereau, Patton and Guitormsen got going, and when they had finished their expedition, they had rammed the first touchdown over the Tide's line.

But Wilson was out of the game, and Tuscahoosa opened up for its great opportunity in the third.

Another followed said let the tally, washington 12, Alabama of the tried manfully, but could-make only one touchdown and after that effort Wilson came in again, and stiffened his squad, but the scoring did not affect the result.

The New Year's Call

To All Georgia

(The following is issued by the committee on church cooperation.)

The new year begins well.

Every Georgian should find cause for new hope and fresh courage in the news that Governor Walker will include education in his call for an extra session of the legislature.

As Christmas 1925 takes its place among the Christmases that have passed, we are remembering Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol" and the final warning which that story, the "Ghost of Christmas Present," gave to Scrooge.

BIRTHS INCREASE

Buenos Aires, Argentina, January 1.—(P)—The Argentine republic faces the new year confidently and in good financial condition, with rising currency and improved exchange.

The most salient financial feature in the last 12 months has been a reduction in the national floating debt from 714,000,000 pesos ($285,600,000) to 409,000,000 pesos ($195,600,000). The year 1926 promises to be a record one for Argentine exports.

The year was ushered in with unsual gaiety. Many buildings in Buenos Aires were illuminated and the leading cafes and hotels were filled

Offering-And Answering-A Problem in Arithmetic

What is the difference between

"I need" and

The answer is: The A-B-C Classified Section!

You don't have to be a mathematician to figure that out. All you have to do is to turn to The Constitution's A-B-C Classified Section and receive an object lesson in turning wishing to owning. This section is composed of innumerable little offers whose sole purpose is to put the things you have set your heart upon within easy reach of your

And to make "having" doubly easy, all these offers are both numerically and alphabetically arranged. The A-B-C and 1-2-3 "guides" take you straight to the things you are seeking.

Give daily attention to the section which makes it so easy to say "I have" instead of "I need!"

Senator Norris Files Notice He Will Fight for Retention Of Income Tax Publicity

Declares Publicity Necessary to Prevent Tax
Being 'Lifted' From Big

Corporations Corporations.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, January 1.—Senator Norris, of Nebraska, author of the income tax publicity section in the present revenue law, has served notice of a vigorous campaign in the senate to retain publicity, which he declares is necessary to prevent "just" taxes being "lifted from the big corporations and saddled on the backs of those less able to pay." The house recently repealed the publicity section. Norris, insurgent republican, cites disclosures of the Couzens investigation of the internal revenue bureau, showing refunds to large corporations.

Secrecy Controls Employees.

"Secrecy has so controlled the employees of the bureau of internal revenue that they dared not tell the public of the infamous conditions which have existed there. Publicity would have prevented that reign of terror and shielding of corruption."

The warmest battle in the senate over the revenue bill will center around the publicity section. It will be close. One poll made in advance has given the repeal of the publicity section a xictory of two votes, 49 to 47. This counts every member, and a full membership is never present.

NEW YEAR'S DAY PROVES BUSY ONE FOR W. W. GAINES

Cartersville, Ga., January 1.—(Special.)—District Highway Engineer E. M. Arnold announces that the Dixie highway between Cartersville and Marietta is now in good shape for traffic, and he believes it will continue so during the remainder of winter.

Several carloads of chert have been placed on the road, which was torn up for the past five weeks, and cars now have no trouble making passage over any part of highway between here and Atlanta, Mr. Arnold declares.

New Year's day had a treble significance to W. W. Gaines, past president of the board of education and now a member of the board from the third ward.

In addition to the holiday exuberance and good cheer that naturally comes on the first day of the year, Mr. Gaines celebrated his birthday anniversary and made a visit to the mayor's office to take his office for the new term on the board, to which he was reelected last year.

The reception began an hour before noon, with members of the cabinet foreign diplomats, senators and representatives, army and navy officers, lesser government officials and representatives of various patriotic organizations exchanging New Year's greetings with the president and his wife. The general public was received after a brief luncheon rest.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge appeared to enjoy the handshaking ordeal, and to each caller they extended greetings of the season. The marine band, divided into two orchestra sections, played almost continuously, as the line wound through the stately rooms of the executive mansion, affording foreign diplomats, senators and repre-of the executive mansion, affording many their first glimpse of the presi-dent's residence. The number was slightly less than the total welcomed a year ago. Several hundred persons, however, failed to reach the white house in time for ad-mittance.

A number of those who greeted the president during the afternoon reception had remained outside the white house gates for several hours, the weather, which has been severe here lately, had moderated, and the warming rays of the sun contributed to the fort of those who were in line outdoors.

The reception at the white house was only one of many social functions during the day by various persons prominent in the official life of Washington. Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg entertained foreign diplomats at a breakfast at the Pan-American union, as secretaries of state in the past have done. Late in the afternoon practically all members of the cabinet and their wives held open house, and many of the embassies and legations were the scene of similar functions. All government departments were osed on account of the holiday.

Bona Allen Employees Entertained at Banquet By Foreman Association

Buford, Ga., January J .- (Special.) Several hundred employees of the Bona Allen factories here were enter-tained by the superintendents and foremen's association of the organi-zation tonight at a huge oyster sup-
